Mission

Building on history.

Our mission is to shape the future of Richmond by preserving our distinctive historic character, sparking revitalization and championing our past and future architectural legacy.

Our city is evolving every day. The skyline and the landscape are changing. That's exactly how we like it.

We are dedicated to keeping the Richmond of tomorrow unique and distinct from every other city on Earth. We are committed to preserving the character of the city, energizing its neighborhoods and conspiring to keep Richmond interesting and authentic.

Background

1920's - When historic neighborhoods such as Church Hill and other early buildings were in jeopardy of demolition, a group of Richmond activists led by Mary Wingfield Scott intervened to preserve them as the wonderful neighborhoods and places they are today.

1935 - The group formed the William Byrd branch of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities (APVA) to save The Adam Craig House. This organization would later spawn Historic Richmond.

1956 - Elizabeth Scott Bocock and Louise Catteral form the Historic Richmond Foundation and work with state and city governments to create the city's Local Old and Historic District ordinance, which protects certain neighborhoods from demolition and architectural change.

1970s-1990s - Historic Richmond continues to champion downtown neighborhoods and buildings which are neglected and in danger as businesses and residents leave for the suburbs.

2010 - Historic Richmond celebrates 75 years of Richmond preservation and revitalization.

Today - During the renaissance taking place in downtown Richmond, Historic Richmond continues to help shape the future of our city by caring for our distinctive historic character and championing our past and future architectural legacy.

Impact

We are champions of Richmond's past and passionate fans of its future.

Richmond's history isn't the whole story. The greatest cities in the world move forward and build on their heritage. Our great old buildings and homes belong to the opening pages of an epic that is still a work in progress. New chapters are written every day. Future generations will pick up where we leave off.

We are not a museum or a government agency. Historic Richmond is an organization dedicated to preserving and protecting the foundation of what makes Richmond unique, beautiful and unlike any other city on the planet. We are a 501(c)3 non-profit that works to encourage preservation, rehabilitation, and revitalization in the city.

We collaborate with government, neighborhoods, businesses, organizations, foundations and individuals who share our passion for Richmond's significant and historic structures and places. We consider it our job to educate and enlighten citizens about the cultural, aesthetic and economic value of Richmond's unique built environment. We engage the community all year long through a regular flow of information and publications, public events, presentations and special tours.

We believe Richmond is like no other city on Earth and we're doing everything possible to keep it that way.

Needs

Needs for the current year include, but are not limited to:

- Increased Annual Fund support from the community
- Support for Monumental Church
- Enthusiastic ambassadors willing to share Historic Richmond's mission and its vision for the city's future
- Community support and advocacy for the burgeoning renaissance of Jackson Ward
- Suggestions and photographs of at-risk sites around Richmond
- Funding for our educational programs

CEO/Executive Director Statement

The year 2015 showcased Richmond to the country and world through grand scale events like the UCI Road World Championship Bike Race, Dominion Riverrock, and the Richmond Jazz Festival, and through smaller crowd-pleasers like the National Beer Expo and the Richmond Bacon Festival. What do these events have in common? The stage. Richmond's historic neighborhoods hosted countless festivals and fairs. Landmark treasures like Maymont and Tredegar Iron Works headlined big stage shows. Our unmatched city center, urban riverfront, river and islands, and our cobblestoned streets were up for, well, anything you can imagine that is fun, challenging or beautiful. There is something about Richmond's authentic places that draws a crowd - whether it is to house a tech company, squeeze in a pop-up shop, or throw a big bash.

Historic Richmond's 2015 was spent planning for the future of Richmond's great stage beyond its annual festivals and shows. Our board came together and mapped out a new strategic plan. Our plan focuses on neighborhood revitalization by lifting up the most derelict historic buildings and blighted spots in which others don't see potential, and helping our best landmark buildings, which are often so costly to maintain that their owners need stewardship to find the best and most lasting methods of preservation. Finally it, involves educating and including in our programs the long-time Richmonders who remember our work from over 50 years ago, as well as the newcomers who don't know that the historic Richmond places they enjoy so much could have looked very different.

In 2016, we flew into action on our plan for places like the Mason's Hall and Capitol Square. We walked the streets of Barton Heights and Brooklyn Park Boulevard and Highland Park, planning our support for these historic neighborhoods. We celebrated the rebirth of Scott's Addition and The Boulevard with a street art photography challenge to capture this unique neighborhood today, before the development changes that are headed their way. We engaged with architects to envision the type of infill in historic neighborhoods that both excites people and respects the history of place.

In 2017 many, if not most, of the houses, churches and commercial buildings in Richmond will be considered historic: those 50 years or older. We hope you will continue to support our work to ensure that each is a star. We intend to be there for their debuts and encores on this stage.

Description

Quoit Club

Membership in the Quoit Club gets you an all-access pass to the past, with members-only tours inside some of the most interesting buildings and locations in the city. You'll mix and mingle with great people, enjoy fantastic food and drink and absorb fascinating expert commentary on Richmond history, architecture and culture. Part Happy Hour and part field trip, there's nothing quite like a Quoit Club event.

Traditionally, quoits was a game played during the 1820s and 1840s with steel rings and metal spikes—think 19th century horseshoes. Through social gatherings, the Quoit Club supports Historic Richmond's mission by engaging its members in caring about and for our distinctive built environment: past, present and future.

The season runs from March until October of each year and events typically run from 6 PM until 8 PM. Events are generally scheduled for the third Thursday of each month. Members must be at least 21 years of age.

Council of Historic Richmond

Founded in 1959, the mission of the Council of Historic Richmond is to support Historic Richmond through a variety of projects and programs. The Council prepares its members to be ambassadors for Historic Richmond through self-enrichment gained from programs, tours, research projects and attendance at educational events sponsored by the Council and Historic Richmond. The Council supports a yearly bus trip for membership to gain exposure to various historic properties.

Every year, the Council hosts Historic Garden Day for the Garden Club of Virginia's Richmond territory. The Council also works with historic neighborhoods to create a walking tour of notable historic homes, where Council members serve as tour guides and hostesses.

Budget

$11,000.00

Education

Description

We also offer free use of our archives and library for anyone who needs to do research or is studying properties in the area. Our archives hold information on hundreds of properties in the Richmond City area. We invite anyone who is interested to browse our library and archives and research their home or any other building of interest.

Budget

$18,000.00

Short Term Success

Our lecture series and fall trips were first created in the Winter of 2009. Now, after two winters and soon to be two falls of lectures and trips, we have fine tuned the events to bring the maximum number of citizens to come and learn about their city. For the lectures, our numbers grew exponentially and we have every reason to believe the same will happen this fall. As time continues, we will monitor the attendance and learn what has worked best for us.

Publications

Description

Historic Richmond's publications are a way to educate the public and promote Richmond's rich architectural legacy to visitors and residents alike. Through these publications, a permanent record of historically significant architecture in Richmond has been created that can be used for generations to come.

Historic Richmond has created and published several books including:

- Richmond's Fan District
- Old Richmond Today
- A Guide to Historic Richmond
- Church Hill The St. John's Historic District
- The Church Hill Old and Historic Districts
- A Field Guide to Built by Blacks

Budget

$126,000.00

Long term Success

This 20-year legacy of publishing books to educate the public helping Richmonders know their city better and promotes Richmond's rich historical legacy to visitors and residents alike. Through these publications, a permanent record of historically significant architecture in Richmond has been created that can be used for generations to come.

Preservation

Description

Preservation encompasses preventing historic structures from falling victim to decay or demolition; raising awareness about local architectural history; supporting the character and continuity of Richmond's National and Local Historic Districts.

Preservation helps Richmond keep its voice. It is a multidisciplinary process that drives tourism, improves quality of life and creates stronger communities. Through the use of a revolving fund, Historic Richmond purchases buildings with architectural or historic significance, usually with the goal of later selling the building to appropriate buyers.

Richmond citizens turn to Historic Richmond to help them save the character of their historic districts and important individual structures in jeopardy of demolition. As a preservation nonprofit, raising awareness of issues that our community faces is an essential aspect of our mission.

Historic Richmond currently owns several historic structures and properties, including:

- Allen Double House, 4 – 6 E. Main Street
- Monumental Church, 1224 E. Broad Street
- St. John's Mews, 2301 – 2303 E. Broad Street

Budget

$166,000.00

Long term Success

HRF has been saving historic buildings since its inception in 1935. With hundreds of saves to our credit, we are the go-to organization when any neighborhood, city member, or government official needs help, advice, or stepping in to save a building.

Comments

Historic Richmond is most fortunate to have a dedicated group of committed Board members, support groups, and volunteers. Our endeavors would never gain momentum without our support groups. They help the very small staff achieve strong educational programs and wonderful restoration of buildings.

Historic Richmond completed a strong financial year in 2016, while making great strides in accomplishing our mission to shape the future of Richmond by preserving our distinctive historic character, sparking revitalization and championing our past and future architectural legacy.

Due to the dedicated support of our donors and careful management of our operating expenses, Historic Richmond realized an increase in net assets of $259,000 during 2016. We closed the year with a cash and investment balance of $8.6 million. Historic Richmond also has property valued at approximately $2.2 million.

Our ending total asset position for 2016 was $11.2 million.

On the revenue side, 100% of our contributions and program revenue were spent on mission-related programs and services. Due to the diligent management of expenses, over 79% of our total expenditures went toward preservation and educational programs and services.

Our Finance Committee is responsible for the financial management of Historic Richmond, including overseeing the investment and management of all funds; approving and monitoring compliance with budgets; and developing long-term financial goals. The Finance Committee oversees the external audit and promotes adherence to a well-established set of internal controls.

Historic Richmond actively invests its resources in the Richmond community by protecting Richmond's most historically significant structures and places in accordance with our strategic plan. We are grateful for each and every one of our donors, who contribute so generously to Historic Richmond. Every donation is vital to enable us to shape the future by protecting and promoting historic buildings and places that make Richmond unique, beautiful and authentic. We at Historic Richmond are very fortunate to have such a supportive community that celebrates Richmond's historic built environment.
